DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

4. Claim 1 recites the limitation "the radial bearing surface" in lines 2-3. Claim 1 further recites the limitation "the axial bearing surface" in lines 4-5. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wilgus (4,845,817) in view of Thompson et al. (5,363,557). Wilgus discloses a bearing shell for a crankshaft thrust bearing having a cylindrical shell, the inside surface of the shell forming a radial bearing surface for the crankshaft, and flanges (18) at both ends of the shell directed radially outward, the outer surfaces of the flanges forming an axial bearing surface for the crankshaft, the bearing shell comprising at least one oil passage (14) running circumferentially on an inside surface of the shell. Wilgus does not disclose an axially extending groove along the outside of the shell for oil distribution on the flanges. However, Thompson et al. teaches an axial groove (22) running along an outside of a crankshaft bearing shell.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the bearing shell of Wilgus with the teachings of Thompson et al. to provide an axial groove on the outside of the bearing shell, said axial groove being connected to the oil passage (14) so as to provide addition lubrication on the outside of the bearing shell.
